Contrary to former belief, it is now claimed that the gorilla can not walk or even stand on its hind feet, as the weight of the body is borne entirely by the outside edges of the little toes.
When adult, the gerilla occasionally runs for a few yards upon its hind feet, but is obliged to balance itself by holding the hands over the head.

That it should fight in the erect posi-tion, as stated by Du Chaillu, is physically impossible; so with the drum-ming on the breast, of which Du Chaillu makes so much.
